“Nope, not gonna look at the camera for you.” Love, Daisy & Delilah

What what? It's March??? I know February is the shortest month but wow it went by fast. Over President's Day weekend, we stayed in an Airbnb, one block off of Venice Beach, and played tourists to celebrate Scott's 50th Birthday. Seems so strange to think that I met Scott when he was 25! But that is how life rolls. ☺

Over the weekend, we all rode skateboards (some better than others), hiked in Malibu, went to Beverly Hills & Rodeo Drive, and overall had a great time. Both girls are active on their softball teams and we are anxious for the opportunity to start playing games. The girls are starting to count down the weeks to the end of school....they are over the online school and wishing for in-person instruction. We are hopeful but we will see...

Wishing you a JOYOUS spring.

A Very Special Account

Imagine you had a bank account that deposited $86,400 each morning. The account carries over no balance from day to day, allows you to keep no cash balance, and every evening cancels whatever part of the amount you had failed to use during the day. What would you do? Draw out every dollar each day!

We all have such a bank. Its name is Time. Every morning, it credits you with 86,400 seconds. Every night it writes off, as lost, whatever time you have failed to use wisely. It carries over no balance from day to day. It allows no overdraft so you can't borrow against yourself or use more time than you have.

Each day, the account starts fresh. Each night, it destroys unused time. If you fail to use the day's deposits, it's your loss and you can't appeal to get it back.

There is never any borrowing time. You can't take a loan out on your time or against someone else's. The time you have is the time you have and that is that. Time management is yours to decide how you spend the time, just as with money you decide how you spend the money. It is never the case of us not having enough time to do things, but the case of whether we want to do them and where they fall in our priorities.

"The key is in not spending time, but in investing it." -- Stephen R. Covey

FUN FACT:

The shamrock, a three-leaf clover, has been associated with Ireland for centuries. It was called the "seamroy" by the Celts and was considered a sacred plant that symbolized the arrival of spring. According to legend, St. Patrick used the plant as a visual guide when explaining the Holy Trinity. By the 17th century, the shamrock had become a symbol of emerging Irish nationalism.

“ Testimonials ”

From Dianne Goodwin

"I knew with rates as low as they were I should really consider a refi on my home, but was dreading the whole process. A good friend of mine in the mortgage industry introduced me to Angela, and told me she was the one to take care of me on a refi. And she was so right. Working with Angela and her team through the application process and approval, was seamless and so much easier than I imagined it would be. From submitting all my documents, to their quick responses to any questions I had, their service to their customers is fantastic. I have already recommended Angela to friends looking to refi their home and feel confident sending anyone I know her way."

For the Season

Origins of St. Patrick's Day

The March 17 celebration started in 1631 when the Church established a Feast Day honoring St. Patrick. He had been Patron Saint of Ireland who had died around the fifth century—a whopping 12 centuries before the modern version of the holiday was first observed. But very little is known about who he actually was, according to Marion Casey, a clinical assistant professor of Irish Studies at New York University (and a regular marcher in the St. Patrick's Day Parade in Manhattan).

"We know that he was a Roman citizen, because Britain was Roman then, and then he was enslaved and taken to Ireland, where he either escaped or was released," Casey says. "And then he became a priest and went back to Ireland, where he had a lot of luck converting the Druid culture into Christians."
