Response from general contractor

“We were blown away. We really didn’t think this was possible!”

Master Craft Floors gave a master class in floor restoration at this Detroit college.

Marygrove College in Detroit, Michigan has been undergoing large scale renovations. The general contractor removed the carpeting at one of the entrances, and found original marble underneath.

The floor was in such bad shape that the general contractor doubted restoration was possible. Master Craft Floors was hired to see if they could bring back the marble’s original beauty.

A two person team began by removing the adhesive residue, then used NeverStrip Diamond Encrusted Pads to revive the luster. The team then applied two coats of NeverStrip Stone, Terrazzo & Concrete Seal (STC) to beautify the marble and protect the results. A total of 20 man hours was all that was required to complete the job.

The general contractor was thrilled, and couldn’t believe what they saw. They thought achieving such a look was impossible, given the rough condition of the original marble.

Master Craft Floor’s professional team are employees of Master Craft Floors, from management to installation, office to field, and hold each other to the highest standard.
