EDITORIAL

Over the years, Building On The Rock has become known for decks that are not just add-ons, but architectural extensions of the home—spaces where families gather, celebrate, and relax in every season. Every project is handled by a single in-house crew of master craftsmen, eliminating subcontractors and ensuring consistent quality, clear communication, and efficient timelines. Many decks are completed in just a few days.

By partnering with trusted suppliers like 84 Lumber and specializing in materials such as TimberTech composite decking and Westbury aluminum railings, the company delivers outdoor spaces engineered to endure Nebraska's demanding climate while maintaining their beauty year after year.

The story of Building On The Rock is also a story of service. The crew regularly volunteers with People's City Mission in Lincoln, serving meals and supporting local shelters—living out the values behind their name beyond the jobsite. This focus on integrity, reliability, and care has earned them a 5-star reputation among homeowners, who consistently praise their attention to detail, professionalism, and the way they turn a simple idea—"a better deck"—into a lasting centerpiece of the home.

Today, Building On The Rock LLC stands as a trusted local brand, combining master craftsmanship, durable materials, and genuine community commitment—building not just decks, but legacies.

From Blueprints to Backyards: The Lifestyle Blueprint for Modern Decks

How engineering, design, and craftsmanship turn empty spaces into outdoor sanctuaries.

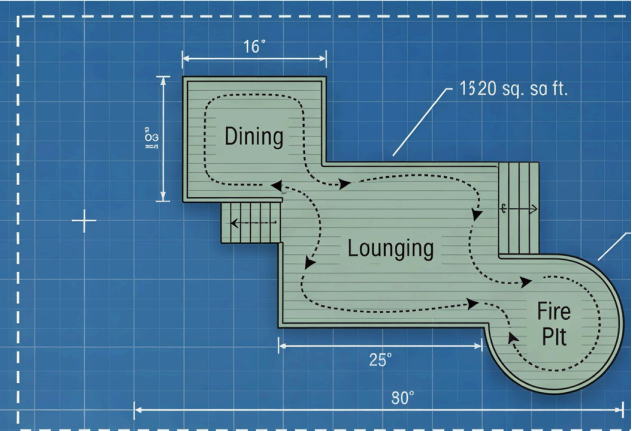

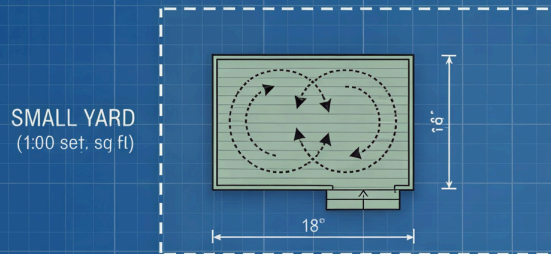

Your

backyard has more potential than you think. From empty space to lifestyle upgrade: the summer guide to engineering the perfect deck. A well-designed deck is not just wood and nails. It's an extension of your living space—the exact place where family moments, gatherings, and your summer lifestyle happen.

Flow matters more than square footage.

A Space Scaling

B Architectural Matching

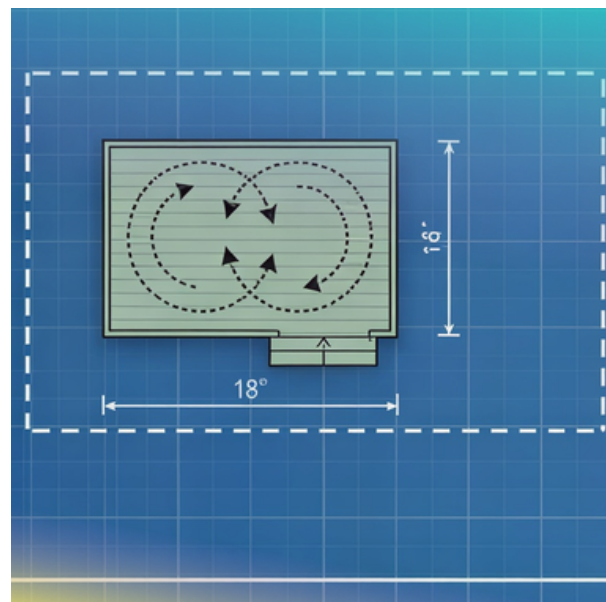

Most people build a deck, but we design an experience. Every backyard is evaluated through a five-factor framework—considering size, family needs, architecture, terrain, and purpose—to guarantee a seamless outdoor extension of your home.

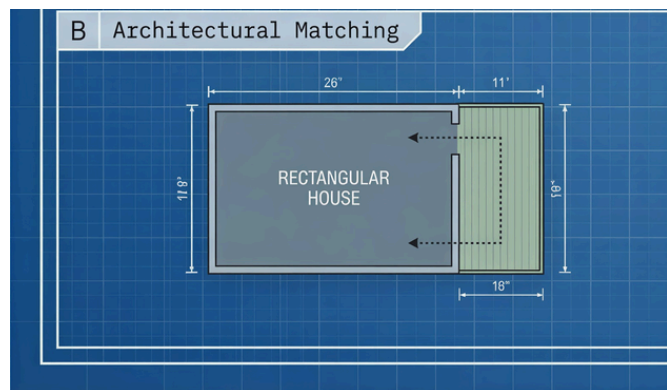

Small Yard
Option. Even a compact yard can become a sanctuary. This design proves that flow matters more than square footage—every inch is optimized for dining, lounging, and gathering.”

Rectangular House Match.

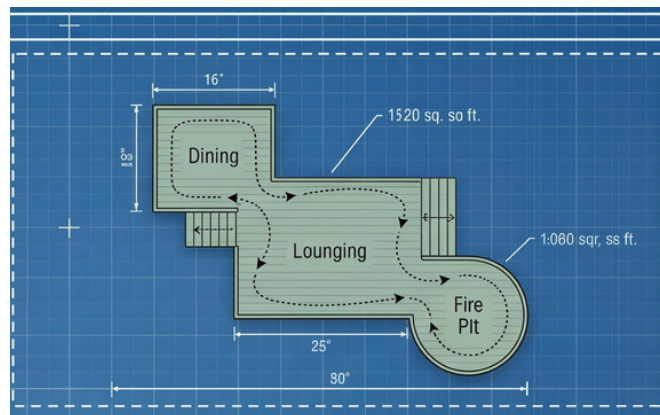

Geometry matters. A rectangular deck aligned with the home's rooflines creates harmony, making the outdoor extension feel native rather than attached.

Large Yard Option.

With more space comes more possibilities. This layout balances dining, lounging, and fire pit zones, showing how a larger footprint can still feel intimate when flow guides the design.

Irregular

House Match.

Not every home is a perfect rectangle. By echoing the unique lines of the house, this deck design blends seamlessly, proving that architecture and lifestyle must move together.

Defining Your Outdoor Room

A railing is more than a boundary. It defines the space, provides essential safety, and sets the stylistic tone for your entire project.

The Frame

DESIGNED FOR VISIBILITY:

The science is simple: vertical lines disappear more naturally into the horizon than horizontal bars. The result is clear, uninterrupted views—whether you're overlooking a backyard garden or a Nebraska sunset. With VeriCable, you preserve the landscape you invested in.

The Science of Visibility

Visual Logic: Vertical lines tend to disappear against the horizon (trees, buildings) more effectively than horizontal bars.

Takeaway:
Unobstructed views.

"Visual Clarity: Preserving the view you paid for."

In Situ: The Completed Look

A multi-story application showing how the system handles height, stairs, an open spans seamlessly.

FRAME YOUR MASTERPIECE

For homeowners planning to build or upgrade, the railing is more than a boundary—it's the finishing touch that transforms a deck into a lasting investment. With Westbury VeriCable, Building On The Rock ensures every project is not only structurally sound but visually stunning, safe, and enduring.

Service Beyond The Jobsite

Building On The Rock LLC doesn't just craft premium decks—it builds community. with the same care and integrity we bring to every deck."

“PERFECT WORK”

— Timothy Hanson

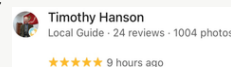

This company employs hard working, knowledgeable crews that come in and complete the job quickly, professionally, and CLEAN UP the entire site.

We are thrilled with their work, efficiency, and the cost was very reasonable and a good value.

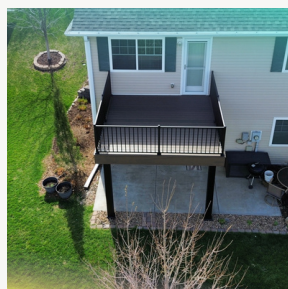

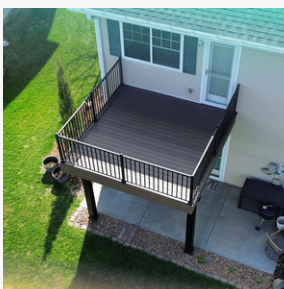

Walter listened to what we wanted, obtained the materials, had his crew start, and even adjusted halfway through the project, designing stairs that fit within the topography of our yard and are better than I could have imagined or designed myself.

I recommend them 10,000% over companies we contacted.

I have been extremely happy with my new composite, maintenance-free deck! I have an engineering background and I recognize quality when I see it. The deck is solid, robust, and beautiful. The installation crew was very skilled and fast. It only took 3 days to complete the deck. The way they attached the deck to the house and their use of water-repellent tape will help keep the deck in good shape for many years. The owner, Walter, was very good at explaining the features of the deck and he was very responsive to questions and concerns. I also like how they are going to do a free follow up inspection after 1 year to make sure everything is right.

I showed and recommended my new deck to several of my neighbors in our HOA. They were so impressed that many of them immediately got new decks. Our HOA now has a total of 8 decks built by Building On The Rock.

I highly recommend getting one of these reasonably priced decks! I would give them more than Five Stars if I could.
